

Grandpa Great Escape by Erin Connor

Dear Mum and Dad,

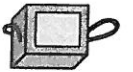

I am writing to you be I want to remind you about the happy, scary and funny times we have had with Grandpa and just sending him away to Twilight Towers like that is an appouling idea. As they all think that Grandpa is ~~as~~ coo coo like the clock we love him and it will snap our lifes in half if you send him away! Think about it once he's gone he's gone and he's never coming back. You are giving away everything from my life and yours aren't you. Mum he might call you a char lady but you love him don't you?

To begin with Grandpa thinks he does a spitfire, he still thinks he is in world war 2 so he will be racing around in his invisible plane and using his wing comandar languer. No one will understand him they will think he's had a blow to the head but we know what he means. How do you know what is in this popular hotel? Which is probaly disgusting. If Grandpa steps out of line he will get swaled back like a wasp in addition this place is horrible. Look what has happened so far, Grandpa has got into trouble this is because again he still thinks he's in world war 2. There will be thousands, millions of people that need majorly looking after Grandpa's only lost his mind!

Think of when you were a child and Grandpa looked after you now it's your turn to look after him. How would you feel if Grandpa decided to put you in a home. Grandpa is a lunatic we all know that however he might have lost his mind but feelings still count. What would you have done if Grandpa wasn't there for you?

Finally you know that Remond Hogg is always up to know good. Do you want him to pass away in a revolting place. Let him die in his favourite place

Your Sincerely
Jack
