

Repetition is used to make the story sound scary. It reminds the readers that it's set in a scary scene.

✓ Identified devices to create cohesion.

Thursday 10th March

Little Red Riding Hood

Success Criteria	SA	TA
Start a paragraph with description	✓	✓
Include action in a paragraph	✓	✓
Include dialogue in a paragraph	✓	✓
Include powerful verbs and adverbs	✓	✓
Include repetition	✓	✓
Include adverbials	✓	✓
End a paragraph with ...	✓	✓
I can use . ! ? A correctly	✓	✓
I can use " " correctly - new speaker new line	✓	✓
I can use - ( ) ; correctly	✓	✓

Shadowy trees created a arch above the forbidden pathways. The suns rays shone between broken gaps of branch. Swamps surrounded the mud as it squelched underneath thin twigs, which lurked on the ground. This is the place perils.

calls home. Meanwhile, a grey wolf emerged out of the darkness: sharp teeth, conyuring face and claws like a prize - all the features of your typical wolf. A busy red cap covered a by-passion's identity, in hand she gripped a wicker basket (full of supplies). "Hello!" he announced. "No need to be afraid," he carried on. Her mouth was stuck - you dropped - she stood there, one idle in awe. "H-hello... wdy..." she stammered, struggling for words. Boggled, astounded and confused, little Red Riding Hood finally thought, "Well he seems kind..." "But is he? Little does she know this wolves reputation is far from perfect."

WOW E blouse! xSTRs

Commas - speech. punctuation ✓

Relative clauses, conjunctions ( ) -